

The Second American Revolution

2007 – 2009

How it was won

How it ended debt and poverty

The background

Following the unlawful subrogation of the right to issue money to a private banking cartel in 1913, the USA moved gradually but inexorably into deeper and deeper debt. Debt not to creditors but debt to the banking cartel who “loaned” America it’s own money at interest!

This same banking cartel engineered a number of “disasters” to pull more and more power into it’s own hands. The stock market crash of 1929 was not the first of such ventures which broke many smaller banks thus concentrating more power in the cartel.

By the 1960s the cartel was so powerful that it could dictate American policy for it’s own ends. Thus, were the “Rules of Engagement” in the Viet Nam war so constructed as to lengthen the conflict indefinitely. Militarily, the USA should have won within months but were forbidden to do so.

After the collapse of the Russian Empire in 1988 – 90, the American people began to turn their attention to problems at home; a potentially “deadly” situation for the banking cartel as more and more became aware of the illegality of the Federal Reserve, that the Federal Reserve was intended and designed to exclusively serve the wishes of the banking cartel to the detriment of America and her peoples, that the income tax was not only illegal but also that 99 cents of each dollar income tax collected went directly as payments to the banking cartel.

The necessity arose to divert the attention of the American peoples who might well have, by 2003, asserted democracy and confiscated the assets of the banking cartel (which they had stolen from the American people in the first place).

Exactly at what point in history the American administration, including the president, became employees of the banking cartel is still a little obscure. Certain it is that both the Clinton and the Bush government’s policies were dictated by the banking cartel.

During the 1990s a carefully detailed plan was drawn up to create a new “external enemy” for America. The cartel didn’t hurry – changes of elected government did not affect their policies.

- For the target day of September 11th 2001, most of the US Air force fighter interceptors were relocated out of range or grounded. Additionally, an air defence “exercise” was running at the time in which more than 50 false alarm hijacked aircraft reports were being processed. Thus ensuring that there would be no interception.
- The major media, CNN, Fox etc. directly participated in the propaganda exercise. It was not until 2007 that it was clearly shown that the “aircraft” on the newsreels were, in fact, computer graphics and that the World Trade Center towers were actually hit by missiles looking very similar to the Pershing missiles going obsolete in the US military.
- Three buildings were demolished by carefully prepared demolition charges some 30+ minutes after the missile hits which, themselves, followed shortly after several massive explosions in the basements of the towers.
- The government then declared “ex cathedra” that a small time semi-political organisation had organised the hijacking of four aircraft which were flown by suicide pilots to four crash sites. On none of the crash sites was any trace of aircraft wreckage found.
- A very rapid removal of the rubble to undisclosed destinations was carried out in order to prevent proper examination of what had actually happened on that day.

It was to be six years before all the details of mass murder of American citizens by the American government were exposed.

During 2007, a number of bills were signed into law by the then president George W. Bush enabling the dissolution of the constitution, the declaration of martial law, confiscation of all property, forced labor camps and injection of tracking devices into all citizens. All that was needed was the copy of 9/11 to justify turning America into a nazi style dictatorship (upon which the “New World Order” structure was based).

It was at this juncture that the American people began to wake up.

How the War was Won

The weakest link in the cartel's plan to create slave America was the necessary co-operation of the police and military. It was, therefore, absolutely vital that they be kept in ignorance of what had happened and was really happening.

Very large numbers of American citizens took it into their hands to change this.

The Internet had made possible the large-scale dissemination of the true story, backed by all the facts. Citizens began downloading the proofs from the internet, copying them onto DVDs and giving and sending them to every police officer, soldier, sailor and airman around the country and abroad. It did not take very long for the truth to percolate throughout the entire military structure. It was then that the "whistle blowers" began to appear.

Exactly what happened next may never be known in detail. Suffice it to say that, during two quite confusing years, very many Americans, to the great surprise of the banking cartel, showed the courage and intelligence which the cartel's propaganda TV had sought for decades to "breed out of Americans". A New World Order was, indeed, brought into being but the exact opposite of that planned by the cartel who envisioned themselves as the "natural ruling elite" and everyone else as their property.

The short period in which the military took control of the country saw the immediate cessation of all hostilities, a rapid negotiated withdrawal from Iraq and the indictment and imprisonment of the banking cartel as well as the confiscation of American property stolen by them over the decades.

The new peace movement, which took over the reigns of power from the military, began a process of World reconciliation beginning with a formal apology for all the war crimes committed by the banking cartel in America's name. Much of the funds confiscated from the cartel were used for reparations in those ravaged countries.

The New American Order

One of the techniques used so effectively by the cartel was the creation of mass debt so that most Americans were, perforce, so concentrated on mere survival that they had nothing left over to see what was being done to them.

The cancellation of all debt, although perceived by a few as a potentially risky move, did, in fact, herald in a new age of vastly enhanced prosperity for all. It was, after all, solely the banking cartel which had benefited from the mass debt which they had created. Americans' energy was freed up to create a new country based on knowledge and understanding.

The land reforms giving everyone who desired it the right to 2 ½ acres of land to grow their own garden and produce saw not only the elimination of the mass pollution of the soil but an almost incredible rise in both the physical and the mental health of the people. The medical industry (a cartel subsidiary), restricted now by law to its proper area of competence, that of first aid, saw a reduction to less than 2% of its former size.

The American model of guaranteeing every family a plot of land large enough to feed them throughout the year has now spread to almost the entire Earth and reduced government to its proper function of co-ordinators of the wishes of the populace as a whole. The insane concept of drawing lines on maps and then making it a crime to cross them without "permission", a thing which we, today, find so difficult to comprehend, rapidly became a thing of the past as the people themselves became self-sufficient and generosity the norm.

The Second American Revolution removed the "lack" mentality created by the banking cartel and with it the perceptual error of the need to defend which had turned so many into aggressors.

Thus was the World changed in a few short years from one of constant war to almost universal peace and prosperity.
